FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF OCEAN BEACH, POINT LOMA, MISSION BAY AND MISSION BEACH

Twenty-second Year No. 49 | Phone Bayview 3157 | Friday, September 22, 1944 | Five Cents a Copy | Ocean Beach, California

Mayor and Council Behind Local Project

Presentation of a check for $7,000 to the city of San Diego by the Ocean Beach community to help build the proposed community recreation center highlighted the "Recreation" rally, held at the elementary school Tuesday evening. Rev. James F. Roberts, chairman of the community civic committee, made the presentation, and Mayor Harley Knox accepted the gift in behalf of the city.

"Am happy to accept this check in the spirit in which it is given," said the mayor. "You sure have set a precedent here. This is the first time the city has been on the receiving end," he declared. "We intend to match this money, and then some, for this project, and don't let anyone talk you into delaying the realization of this center until after the war. There is critical need for this type of community enterprise, so let's get it into operation."

The mayor also took the opportunity to talk of plans for the development of the Mission Bay area, which includes Ocean Beach, he said. "We had this matter under advisement most of the forenoon today at the city council meeting, and we are determin- to make of this area not only a playground for San Diego and vicinity but for the world. Regarding the proposal for moving the Ocean Beach-Mission Beach bridge, all plans to date are merely preliminary thinking. Don't get excited about the loss of the bridge. Instead, get back of us and support the project since it means prosperity for all of San Diego and a big increase in business for Ocean Beach. We plan to use the post-war construction federal money to be directed our way for this Mission Bay project because it is a tremendous enterprise."

"This is the finest manifestation of community spirit I have ever seen," declared Councilman DeGraff Austin. Am ready to do anything I can do to hurry this thing through. I can assure you that the city council will get this project under way with dispatch."

Councilman Chas. C. Dail said "this way of going about getting help from the city is certainly unique. You have us on the spot now, so we'll have to perform. I, for one, will do my part to facilitate this program."

Councilman G. C. Crary also highly praised Ocean Beach and the committee for uniting on and pushing this project and also gave assurance that he will do his part in helping this community to realize the recreation center.

W. A. Kearns, superintendent of the city recreation department, declared that "this is the first time in 16 years that so many city councilmen have been assembled in a community meeting of this kind. When the center is ready we'll get you the finest leadership in directing the play center that we can find." He indicated that the Ocean Beach recreation center would likely be patterned after the La Jolla center, which is one of the best in the country, he said. "Chairman E. K. Klenke of the city playground and recreation commismission, recommends that Ocean Beach should have a standing committee of five or seven to help plan the construction of the recreation center."

Fred H. Kraft, one of the heavy contributors to the local project, said "this recreation center is an investment in a future generation. If we had more of these recreation centers in the country we would have less juvenile delinquency. Am hoping that Ocean Beach will contiune its splendid record for low rate of such delinquency. I think Chairman Roberts and his committee have set a precedent in pushing a community betterment program in a way previously unheard of in San Diego. Here we are giving to the city instead of asking the city to do all the giving."

Chairman Roberts presided and called on Mrs. D. C. Muchmore, committee vice-chairman, who spoke of the success of the drive in the face of difficulties, not the least of which was to acquaint the Ocean Beach folks with the purpose and needs of the campaign. She presented Mrs. W. L. Meade, who had been in direct charge of the canvass, and reported that no less than 759 receipts for money contributed in the drive had been issued, and that there are a considerable number of the women solicitors who have not as yet reported on their work.

A feature of the business session was the announcement that the Sand-Oster Clinic of Ocean Beach was investing $500 in the recreation center.

Only Paul J. Hartley and Walter W. Austin of the city council were unable to attend the rally.

CAMPAIGN CONTINUES FOR CLEAN-UP PURPOSES, SAYS CIVIC COMMITTEE

The community civic committee that has been carrying on the campaign for funds for the Ocean Beach recreation center announces that "residents here who desire to make an investment in this community project can do so by calling Mrs. Muchmore, B-4725, or Mrs. Meade, B-4827. All those who made promises to give later or give to Mr. Reed in the Bank of America please do so as soon as possible. The books will remain open so that we can continue in our work to reach our goal."

In other words, the committee wishes it emphasized that the rally held Tuesday did not end the campaign, that clean-up work remains to be done in the hope that the $7000 announced at the rally will be considerably increased.

Civilian Defense - -

While we are winning the war, the war is not yet won. The war is not over. It is over only for the dead. This is a harsh statement, but none-the-less true and we must continue to do the good work we have done in the past.

Without old troop 28 records, I can furnish only a very incomplete list of those scouts now serving, but I am sending you all those I can remember for the moment, and will attempt to gather a few more names for you."

Rex was driving and the three were on their way home from a visit to Mrs. Calhoun, who is ill in Naval hospital, when a car driven by James A. Mozingo, 21, a sailor, crashed into them, completely wrecking the Calhoun car.

Mozingo, who was reported to have run the stop sign at the intersection, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving. He was taken to the city jail. The Calhoun car also caught fire. Firemen were called and put out the blaze.

Mrs. Golden was given first aid at the Naval hospital and was able to return to her home the same night.

RED CROSS IN OCEAN BEACH

By ONA E. PITCOCK

Last week we had 41½ dozen cookies and a large box of puzzles and games. I want to thank every one in the name of the Red Cross and our service-men. I do hope every woman who can will bake cookies. You see they mean such a lot to the boys. They come home tired, sick and very downcast. They have been through so much and home-made cookies and cakes are so much a part of our way of life that it gives them a boost besides the feeling that we have not forgotten them. You hear on your radio how much every little thing from home means to them. You who listened to the "Halls of Montezuma" last Saturday heard our boy, Langford.

This week Mrs. Margolis sent a large box of Christmas greeting cards so our men in the hospital can get them off to the buddies they left behind and to the relatives and friends here at home. Each boy is not given a whole box but the boxes are divided. I hope that you women send in enough so that Ocean Beach will make as good showing as we did last year.

Red Cross has as hard a time as you do to get gasoline and oil for corps wagons so that is why we have to ask you to leave your cookies at 4264 Montalvo st., 4721 Voltaire or 4769 Del Monte. If several of you bake cookies and pool them at one place, however, we will have them picked up. We were delighted to get two new cookie bakers from San Diego this week and our Girl Scout troop is going to try their hands on a cake this time.

Don't forget the cards for our boys to mail out. If you will purchase them and put my name on them I will see that they are called for if you find it too far to come to 4769 Del Monte ave.

Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. F. R. Felt, 4475 Del Monte ave.

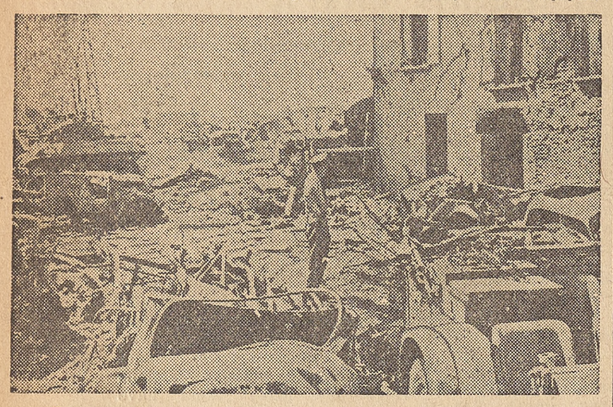
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allied Invasion of Yugoslavia Poses Another Threat to Reich; Plan for Small Standing Army

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)



Entering Chambois, France, the Allies found abandoned, wrecked and burned German equipment, common sights along the enemy's battered retreat route to the Reich.

EUROPE:
New Front

For the little man with the clipped mustache, there seemed to be no end of trouble.

Although his broken armies in the west were reorganizing for a stiffer stand against the U. S. and British onslaught, and although his battered armies in the east were slowing the Russians from the Black sea to the Carpathians, the Allies posed still another threat to his narrowing defensive circle by an invasion of Yugoslavia.

As Russian troops tore across Romania onto the eastern Yugoslav border near the capital of Belgrade, U. S. and British forces landed on the western coast for a drive inland. As the two Allied armies worked forward for a junction, Marshal Josip Tito's Partisans were active in harassing German troops and sabotaging communication lines.

The twin offensive in Yugoslavia doubly imperilled the harried legions of Adolf Hitler.

First, the U. S., British and Russian drives promised to link the Allied armies for a concerted attack against southern Austria and Hungary, and, also to outflank the Nazis manning the Gothic line in Italy to the west; and, second, an Allied junction would cut off an estimated 260,000 enemy troops remaining in lower Yugoslavia, Greece and the Aegean islands.

Stiffen at Border

Bleated the German radio to fanatical Nazi rearguards resisting the U. S. and British drives to the Reich's western frontier:

"Every day gained now amounts to a reinforcement of our national strength for the defense of the Reich itself. . . ."

Partly because of such resistance, partly because the fast-moving Allied armies had outrun their lengthening supply lines, the U. S. and British thrusts in the Lowlands and France temporarily lost their whirling momentum.

Fighting was particularly heavy in northeastern Belgium before the fortress city of Liege and in the rugged Ardennes forest, and directly to the east of Paris, where American troops drew up along the Moselle river for an assault on Nazi defenses guarding the rich industrial Saar basin.

Mounted thickly in the precipitous, wooded heights east of the Moselle, the German artillery maintained a steady drumfire against doughty U. S. troops seeking to establish firm bridgeheads across the river.

Farther to the south, Lieut. Gen. Alexander Patch's Seventh army, driving up from the Mediterranean for a juncture with Lieut. Gen. George Patton's Third army along the Moselle, drove on the Belfort gap, the low lying plane between the Vosges mountains of France and Swiss border leading into Germany.

Costly Fighting

Reflecting the strong pressure the Russians were exerting to the northeast of Warsaw, the Germans acknowledged their withdrawal across the Narew river, ". . . to avoid the danger of a Russian breakthrough on the southern border of East Prussia."

In withdrawing across the Narew, the Nazis continued their policy of economizing their forces by giving ground when the superior weight of their opponent promised to grind down their manpower.

Because of the proximity of the Russians to German soil, however, the Nazis no longer were free to make wholesale withdrawals, but now faced bloody front-line fighting.

MISCELLANY

OPA VIOLATIONS: In the first half of this year, formal enforcement of Office of Price administration regulations was necessary in 42,000 cases, involving violations of price ceilings, rationing quotas, and rent levels. Action included revocation of 20,684 consumer gasoline rations, 4,265 suits for injunctions, 1,158 triple damage suits, and 2,191 criminal prosecutions.

CIVILIAN GOODS:
Postwar Formula

Manufacture of civilian goods will begin in earnest with the fall of Germany, with war output due to drop about 40 per cent, and 4,000,000 workers freed for other jobs, the War Production board revealed.

At the present time, a limited reconversion program has been instituted, with emphasis placed upon preparation for the eventual resumption of civilian production. Under current regulations, manufacturers are permitted to develop working postwar models and order machinery for civilian output.

Because of the U. S.'s record-breaking production of 79,350,000 tons, world steel output rose to 146,500,000 tons in 1943. While production increased here, it dropped from 28,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons in Germany and from 18,000,000 to 12,000,00 tons in Russia.

In allowing those manufacturers not engaged in war work to start turning out civilian lines after the Nazis' downfall, the WPB will maintain priorities for military production alone and will relax most of its controls over materials. Furthermore, it will provide assistance for manufacturers in switching over to civilian work.

DEMOBILIZATION:
Discharge Plans

Total length of service, time served overseas, combat record and dependency will govern the demobilization of soldiers following the defeat of Germany, the army announced.

Under the army's plans for releasing surplus men, each of the first four mentioned factors will be worth a certain number of points, with release going to doughboys with the highest ratings. However, it was pointed out, men with qualifications needed for the war in the Pacific will be transferred to the Far East regardless of their status.

Because the war in the Pacific will receive first call on shipping, it may take many months for men eligible for demobilization to return to this country, the army said. Since men in camps here are expected to have the lowest priority ratings, they will constitute the principal pool for replacements.

Since the U. S.'s full seapower will be needed in the all-out war against Japan, there will be no demobilization of the navy when Germany falls.

Future Army

Declaring that . . . "a large standing army has no place among the institutions of a modern democratic state," Gen. George C. Marshall told officers planning the postwar military organization to work on a small, efficient force with a reserve of well-trained citizens.

Gen. Marshall

In issuing his directive, General Marshall assumed that congress would pass legislation requiring every able-bodied American youth to undergo training before placement in the reserves.

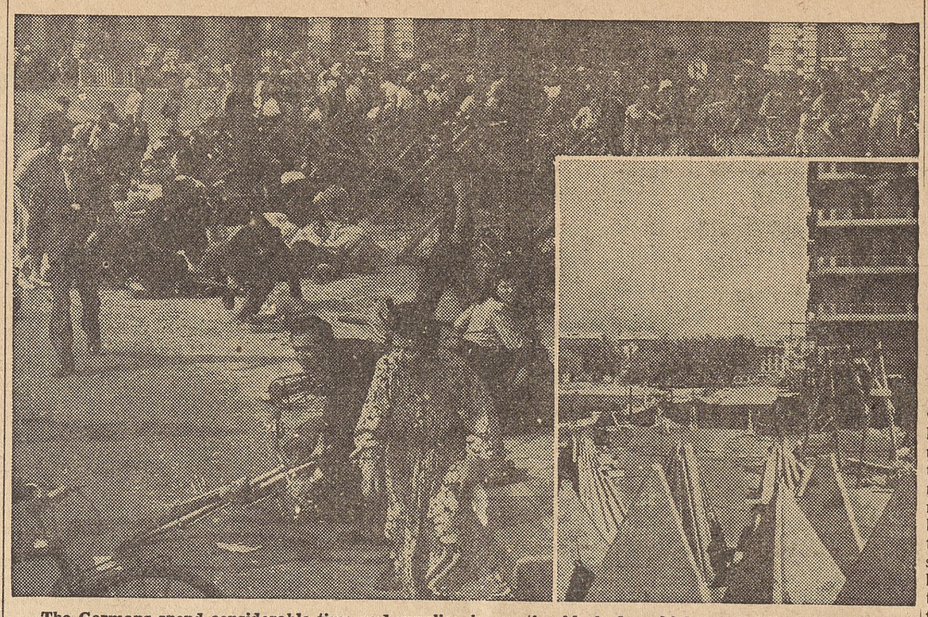
By advocating a small, efficient force with a large pool of reservists, General Marshall said that there was more opportunity for advancement in such an organization than there was in a big standing army, where the size made it necessary to maintain a large, professional officers' cast at all times.

HELP WANTED

A shortage of 200,000 workers exists in the principal industrial regions of the country, and it can be remedied only by shifting men and women from areas where there is less stringency, the War Manpower commission declares.

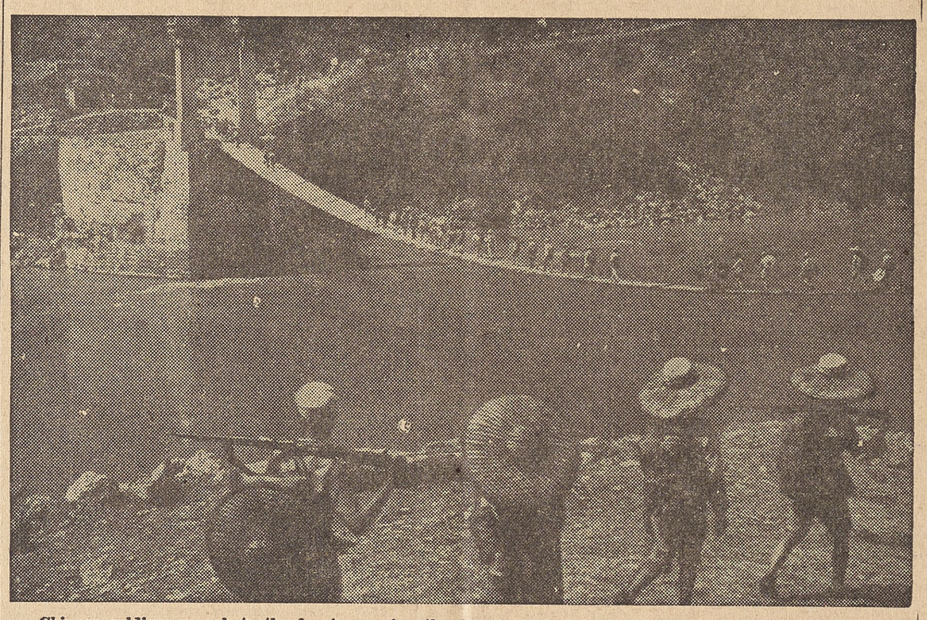
Heavy war industries in New England, North Atlantic, Middle West and the Pacific Coast are being hampered by lack of skilled help. Only in the South and Southwest is there an approximately adequate labor supply.

German Road Blocks Fail to Halt Allies



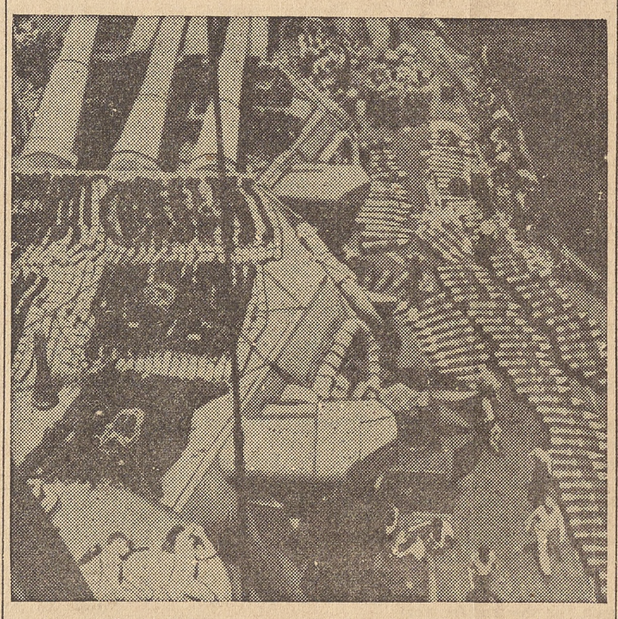
The Germans spend considerable time and supplies in erecting blockades which prevent the rapid advance of the Allied armies. The blockages had little effect as noted by rapid progress being made in France. Right, is a German road block along the water front in St. Raphael, southern France. Another type of block, shown at left was used in Paris.

Chinese Soldiers Cross Treacherous River



Chinese soldiers march to the front, crossing the treacherous Salween river by means of a temporary suspension bridge. The original bridge was blown up by the Chinese as a measure against the Japanese advance. All supplies for the Chinese forces in this district have to be carried by Chinese on their backs or dropped by planes. Increased transport planes have made it possible to begin to furnish the fighting Chinese in the Salween river section with much needed weapons, food and other supplies.

Ship Loaded With Jap Death



Rows of huge shells wind along the decks of a U. S. battleship as it loads up somewhere in the Pacific preparatory to carrying out its assignment of blasting Jap holdings. The inferno loosed by its guns cleared a path for the landing forces, which were then able to send a landing party ashore to capture the base.

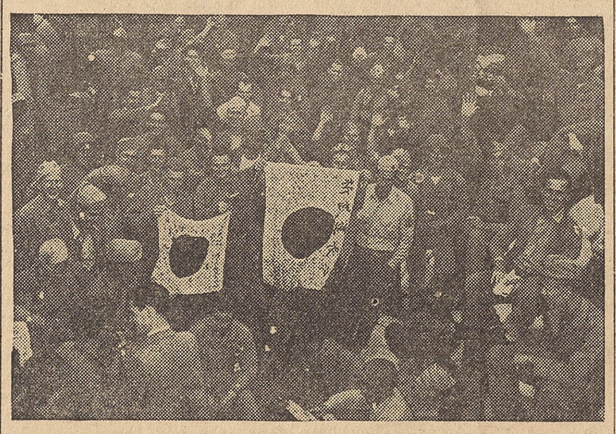
Marine Vets Return Home



Home for the first time in 30 months, some 300 marines of the Second division, heroes of fighting the Japs on Guadalcanal, Saipan, Tarawa and Tinian, shouted with joy as their transport docked in San Francisco. Sixty-five of the returning heroes were casualties, sick or recovering from battle wounds. They display captured Jap flags.

The Use of Fabric and Thread in Decorating Homes of Tomorrow

By Ruth Wyeth Spears

BEFORE

SHABBY ROOM OF NO SPECIAL STYLE MAY BE MADE MODERN WITH CLEVER USE OF FABRIC AND DETAILS

IF YOU are dreaming about redecorating after the war—and who is not—put this in your note book. There will be a more lavish use of fabric in home decoration than ever before. There will be many new types of textiles and many new weaves. Fabrics will be designed to wear longer and to stay clean longer. A feeling of spaciousness will be obtained by blotting out some walls with curtains. Irregular or badly proportioned spaces will be brought into harmony by covering parts of them; and small windows will be made to seem high and wide by covering the wall around them.

The homemaker who can sew a straight seam will save many a dollar for she may have curtains of any length, width or fullness merely by stitching straight widths together. And here is a decorators' tip for her—allow a hundred and fifty per cent fullness if French pleats are to be used at the tops of curtains; and set the machine for a long stitch for speed. Clip selvages every few inches to avoid puckered seams and hems.

NOTE—You do not have to wait for your home of tomorrow to have the attractive coffee table shown in this sketch. It is easy to make from straight cuts of lumber. A map, a favorite print or a piece of hand work may be placed under the glass top to give a decorative effect. Ask for pattern No. 254 and enclose 15 cents. Address:

Donald Nelson Remolded By Government Service

Thinks Public Officials' Responsibilities Are Greater Than Businessmen's; Believes Expansion Necessary to U. S.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building.
Washington, D. C.

As Donald Nelson, head of the War Production board, sips his tea in Chungking, what is he thinking about?

He knows that most of Washington thinks he is through. He knows that some people think that if he is, business, big and little, has lost a friend at court.

He recalls that, before he could walk up the ramp of his plane to take off on this hazy mission to Cathay, the President had casually remarked at a press and radio conference that the WPB chief would not necessarily take up his former duties when he returned.

He knew then that in all probability congress would pass the demobilization-reconversion bill which, although it does not name the WPB specifically, nevertheless does give power to a new agency which would make Mr. Nelson's organization a mere appendage.

He knew, too, that many of his colleagues who remain on the board, or hold other positions which will affect American economics in the next months, if not years, hold views contrary to his. Privately he calls them "contractionists," while he calls himself an "expansionist." A battle between these two categories is going on now. Mr. Nelson's fate may influence the outcome.

Because the results of this struggle may affect America's economy vitally in the next few years I think it is rather important to consider Mr. Nelson's own attitude; an attitude, a philosophy, if you will, which has gradually developed since he has been in Washington.

I believe Nelson wants to stay in government. I believe, as do a small percentage of persons who are interested in his fate, that he will be offered as good a job, or a better one than he has had. What the "contractionist - expansionist" controversy means to the country's business, I'll take up in a minute, but first I'd like to say a little more about Nelson. I have gleaned my views from no key-hole peeping, no rifling of Mr. Nelson's files, but from those who know him well, plus some of my own observations.

There are two reasons why I believe Mr. Nelson wants to stay in government.

One is partly psychological and has to do with what has happened to Nelson's own attitude toward government, which his closest friends have watched develop. The other has to do with this idea of "expansionism," definition of which entails a number of facts and figures, some of which may startle you as they did me when I saw them assembled for the first time and had them carefully checked and double-checked. They reveal strikingly what the economic problem is which this country is facing and which so far it seems ill-prepared to meet.

Nelson came here from big business—Sears Roebuck is pretty big. He was used to pressing buttons and giving orders like most big businessmen. This particular function is a poor buffer against the slings and arrows of which Washington has more than a quiverful.

FINDS WAYS TO GET THINGS DONE

Most businessmen, as one old-time politician said to me the other day, are immediately affected in one of two ways when they step into public life. There are the ones who, when the buzzer isn't answered immediately, or when the order is criticized or its wisdom or even its integrity questioned, explode in haughty anger. And there are the ones who learn to take it and go right ahead and find a way to get things done, with the chips and quips falling where they may, including into their own breakfast coffee.

Nelson is in the latter class.

He not only can take it but he has grown to like it. In fact, he has decided, unless his friends read him wrong indeed, that he wants to be a public servant. That he believes he can get more satisfaction out of public life than out of private life. That doesn't mean that he will simply let himself be kicked upstairs into a sinecure. He will demand a job that he believes is a real one in which he can truly serve.

And now we come to the second thing which has influenced Nelson's attitude, and it, like the first, brought about something like a conversion in the man. Just as he became convinced that a public career offered the best opportunity of service, so Nelson became converted to expansionism in general and to the importance of small business in particular and this is one of the causes of friction in the WPB today—a notable result of which was the resignation of Charles E. Wilson.

In the course of his experience in Washington, Nelson became convinced that maximum productivity of industry is essential to prosperity, and more recently, that the protection of small business in the coming readjustment period is essential to maximum production. He felt that if big business were to succeed and the capitalistic system of free enterprise were to be preserved, little business must be expanded.

Specifically, Mr. Nelson believes, according to his often-expressed opinion, that the more little businesses there are, selling the things that a firm like Sears Roebuck sells, the more things Sears Roebuck will sell.

PRODUCTIVE CAPACITY GREATLY INCREASES

And now we come to some of the strange statistics about business, big and little. The most striking of all to me is this: retail trade, in spite of all the difficulties in its path, had an increase of dollar values in sales, of more than 50 per cent in 1943 over 1939—department of commerce statistics show $42,042,000,000 for 1939—$63,268,000,000 for 1943. That is expansion under difficulties.

And here is another: the department of labor figures reveal that from 1939 to 1943 the average yearly employment showed a decrease of only one-tenth of 1 per cent.

In the field of agriculture, although the farm production has nearly doubled, the farm population has decreased nearly 40 per cent—more expansion.

What do these figures mean? That the productive capacity has been increased tremendously, not only in the war industries but in consumer goods, and the expansionist believes that what has been done can be continued provided that obstacles are removed.

In addition to this revelation of the nation's highest productive capacity, remember that there are 11 or 12 million men in the armed forces, 11 million more in civilian industry than before the war and 3 million in government.

The 11 million in private industry must keep their jobs, and jobs in business, big and small, must be found for those discharged from the armed services, plus some released from government work.

To achieve this, according to Nelson, the country must go expansionist, must further every means of expanding production.

The contractionist, he says, although he naturally plans, hopes and works for expansion in his own business, does not always see the importance of expansion in all businesses, especially in those which compete with him.

If Donald Nelson has the opportunity, he is willing to go ahead doing his part to help expand industry, big and little. It remains to be seen whither leads the road from China.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

The British government has relaxed its rigid blackout rules.

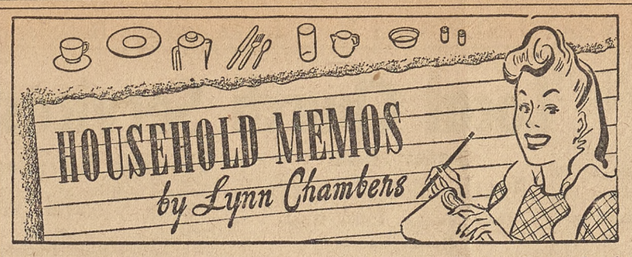
The people of Sweden, preparing to celebrate the victory of the Allies over the axis, have flooded the "largest fireworks manufacturing company" in Stockholm with orders for fiery portraits of Prime Minister Churchill, Marshal Joseph Stalin, and President Roosevelt.

The results of research conducted during 25 years by the University of Illinois in heating, ventilating, cooling, insulating, building materials, mechanical equipment of buildings, sewage disposal, plumbing, sanitation, home management, household art, house planning and construction and rural architecture is to be gathered and collated to solve the post-war small-home problem.



Meal Contrasts In Color, Texture Help Appetite

Cheese Souffle Sandwiches team up with ripe olives to give good flavor and color contrast to those quickie lunches.

How is your contrast IQ in meals? Do you serve whitefish, potatoes and cauliflower all at the same meal and expect the family to eat it? Do you put before them Bean Loaf, mashed squash and bread pudding and expect them to find the meal palatable?

Yes, the foods are all highly nutritious and may be well prepared, but there's an important element in meal planning missing in these suggestions. It is contrast. There's a lack of contrast in flavor, color and texture in these food combinations, and without that meals will often go uneaten.

Real interest in foods is an interest in the way they look and how they feel in the mouth. If the meal is colorful, the family is immediately attracted. There is also a desire for different textures. That's why the family wants something crispy in a salad when they have a soft food like stew, spanish rice or spaghetti.

People are very fond of macaroni and corn or potatoes and parsnips, but they don't care for them at the same meal. If you're having macaroni, try serving it with something green like green beans, peas, broccoli or asparagus and watch the family go for it. The table will be more colorful, too, and we eat with our eyes, too, you know.

Now, how would you like this combination? Mock drumsticks, lima beans and carrots. There's no sameness about texture or color there.

Mock Drumsticks.
(Serves 6)
1½ pounds veal, beef or pork steaks, cut thin
6 skewers
2 cups cornflakes
1 egg
2 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons fat
¼ cup water

Cut meat into strips and roll around skewers in the shape of a drumstick.

Roll cornflakes into fine crumbs. Cover drumsticks with crumbs, then dip in slightly beaten egg to which milk and seasonings have been added. Roll again in crumbs. Brown the drumsticks in fat, then add water, cover tightly and bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven about 1 hour or until tender.

Here's an easy dinner as good to the eye as to the palate:

Cream of Tomato Soup
Lamb Roll Baked Squash
Hashed Brown Potatoes
Cole Slaw
Apple Sauce Chocolate Cookies

Lamb Roll.
(Serves 6)
Boned Breast of Lamb
¾ pound bulk pork sausage
2 tablespoons lard
1 small onion, diced
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 cup tomatoes

Have lamb breast boned, spread with sausage meat and tied into a roll. Brown on all sides in hot fat. Season with salt and pepper. Add all other ingredients. Cover closely and cook very slowly until done, about 1½ hours. Add more liquid, if needed.

Colorful vegetables in this menu are all cooked with the meat:

Braised Liver with Vegetables
Mashed Potatoes
Orange-Watercress Salad
Rye Bread — Butter
Butterscotch Sundae

Braised Liver With Vegetables.
(Serves 6)
1½ pounds sliced liver
Flour
2 tablespoons bacon drippings
6 carrots
2 green peppers
6 small onions
Salt and pepper
½ cup water

Dredge liver with flour. Brown in hot drippings. Clean and dice vegetables. Arrange in piles on slices of liver. Season. Add water. Cover and cook slowly until liver and vegetables are done. Beef liver will take about 45 minutes. Pork, lamb and veal (or calves') liver will take about 30 minutes.

Now, for a luncheon dish that has unusual flavor and contrast. First, here's the menu I'd suggest:

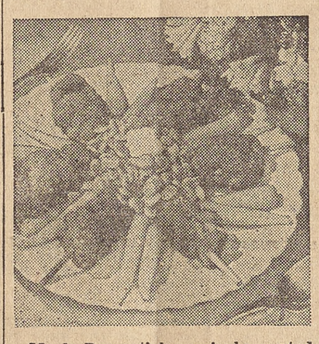
Vegetable Broth
or
Grapefruit Juice
Cheese Souffle Sandwiches.
Jellied Fruit Salad Beverage
Date Bars

A double boiler will help the cook produce perfect souffle sandwiches:

Cheese Souffle Sandwich.
(Serves 6)
6 slices white bread
¼ pound processed cheddar cheese
Dash of pepper
Dash of paprika
3 eggs
Ripe olives

Toast the bread (crusts trimmed) on both sides. Melt the cheese in the top of a double boiler. Add pepper and paprika to egg yolks. Beat until thick, then fold this mixture into egg whites which have been beaten until stiff but not dry. Pile on toast and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until puffy and golden brown. Place on a chop plate and garnish with ripe olives.

For the fruit salad suggestion, you may have cherry flavored gelatin with melon balls and dark grapes; lemon flavored gelatin with pineapple, white grapes, nutmeats, and cherries.



Mock Drumsticks, crisply coated and fried to tenderness, are fine foil for whole cooked carrots and lima beans. Use a circular platter to carry out the pattern.

Date bars are a chewy contrast to the rest of the meal.

Date Bars.
(Makes 2 dozen)
1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ cup bran or wheat germ
1 cup chopped dates
1 cup chopped walnuts
3 eggs
1 cup honey
¼ cup melted butter

Sift together flour, salt, cinnamon and baking powder. Add bran, dates and nuts. Beat egg until thick, add honey and butter. Mix well. Stir in flour mixture, blending thoroughly. Spread evenly on well-greased pan and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven about 35 minutes. Cut in squares while warm, then remove from pan.

Butterscotch Rice Pudding.
(Serves 6)
⅓ cup rice
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped dates

Wash rice, then add rice and salt to milk. Bring to a boil and simmer 25 minutes. Meanwhile melt butter and add sugar. Cook slowly until mixture melts and turns dark brown. Add to rice-milk mixture and stir. Remove from heat and add lemon juice, vanilla and dates. Cool.

Unknown Insects

Entomologists estimate that more than 90 per cent of all insect species of the world are still undescribed, and therefore unknown.

Fertilization Helps in Improving Pasture

The presence of a large number of weeds in a permanent pasture indicates one or two problems: low soil fertility and overgrazing, or probably a combination of the two, say agronomists.

Most growers think of controlling weeds in pastures by mowing but there is a much better way, they say. Apply one to two tons of limestone per acre and 500 pounds of 0-14-7 to obtain a good sod. Do not overgraze the pastures during dry weather and keep the animals off the range in early spring until the clovers and grasses are established.

There will be a considerable growth of weeds immediately after the limestone and fertilizer are applied but they can be kept down by mowings until a good sod is established, they say. A mowing machine bears the same relationship to weed control as headache tablets to a headache.

Growers will need to provide supplementary grazing for early spring and also for the hot, dry periods in summer. Small grains and crimson clover make excellent spring grazing, while kudzu, Sudan grass and lespedeza are good for the summer.

Attend Refrigerator to Get Maximum Efficiency

Your refrigerator will "feel the heat" during overtime work and will need a little extra care to provide maximum efficiency. Keep the condenser coils free from dirt and dust which interfere with the motor's cooling efficiency and cause it to run more. Use a long-handled brush or a vacuum cleaner attachment to clean the coils, which on most refrigerators are behind or underneath the food chamber. If you have an electric refrigerator, be sure to turn off the motor before cleaning the coils.

Avoid frequent and lengthy door openings. A small table or shelf near the refrigerator will be handy, as several articles can be taken out of the box at one time without opening the door frequently and letting the cold air out and the warm air in.

If a refrigerator is overcrowded with food, the necessary circulation of air will be stopped. Wait until hot foods are cool before putting them in the refrigerator. There are many foods which don't need refrigerating, so you need not crowd the box with sugar-preserved foods, such as dates, jellies, honey and syrup; fresh foods, such as bananas, potatoes and avocadoes, or other foods, such as vinegar, unopened canned or bottled goods, except fresh milk and cream, and cooking fats, except bacon grease and drippings.

Movie Projection

Projection of motion pictures must be timed nicely to obtain the illusion of smooth movement. An image on the retina of the human eye persists for about one 20th of a second, and by introducing a new picture before the old one fades out, the two are fused. Movie projectors are designed to throw 234 separate pictures per second on the screen. If the projector is run too fast or too slowly, the pictures do not fuse together well. The result is flicker.

Motion picture cameras are geared to take 24 pictures a second, the same rate at which they are projected. However, in the case of slow motion movies, the camera is operated at high speed. The film is projected on the screen at the normal speed of 24 pictures per second.

THE OCEAN BEACH NEWS

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY AT
1922 BACON STREET, OCEAN BEACH, CALIFORNIA

Entered as second-class matter December 1, 1922, at the post office in Ocean Beach, San Diego, Calif., under the Act of March 3, 1897.

FORWARD LOOKING

There is something forward looking in the community recreation program of Ocean Beach that should commend itself to other areas of San Diego.

Although Ocean Beach has recognized no acute juvenile delinquency problem in its community, leaders there understand that such problems often develop unnoticed. Roughly 20,000 persons live in the community, which is largely self-contained.

Community leaders decided that the way to keep people out of mischief is to keep them busy. They prevailed upon the city to purchase property adjacent to the school playgrounds and then set out to raise by popular subscription a considerable fund with which to erect a community building.

This building is planned as a social center for Ocean Beach. It will be a meeting place for such groups as Kiwanis, Rotary, the various veterans' organizations and the Scout groups. A small auditorium will be provided for meetings and for presenting plays.

If there is anything unusual about the program, it probably is in the fact that the community has recognized its own responsibility. Leaders have not waited for the rains to fall before fixing their roof, so to speak, and they have not waited for someone to come and solve their problem for them. They report that Ocean Beach residents are responding splendidly to their solicitation.

The Ocean Beach example is worthy of emulation.—San Diego Tribune-Sun.

WOMAN VICTIM OF AN ATTACK IN OCEAN BEACH

Ocean Beach police report a young woman cafe manager was the victim of a criminal attack by a service-man near a house in the 5000 block on Newport ave. early Sunday morning. She told the officers that she was seated in her parked car when a serviceman pulled her from the car and dragged her behind the house where he raped her, the police were informed. The victim's husband, now an officer in the navy, is a former police officer, they report.

Campfire girls and "bluebirds" are to meet Thursday, Sept. 28, 3 p.m. at the elementary school, the meeting to be for girls of seven or older who wish to learn more about these groups, announces Mrs. E. G. Colby, 2457 Willow st., district extension director. Mothers are especially invited to attend the meeting with their daughters, she says.

What's the Rush?

IT'S THE TELEPHONE RUSH.

Every night thousands of service men and women dash to the nearest telephones to talk with families and friends at home. Most of the Long Distance calls from camps and naval stations are crowded into a few short hours.

Many circuits are likely to be crowded at that time and it helps a lot when you keep the lines clear from 7 to 10 for service men and women.

Things you may not know about a busy western neighbor

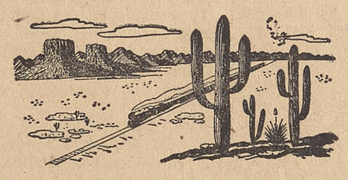
Southern Pacific has been a part of western life for three quarters of a century. We've had our share of brickbats, and we've had our share of praise. Mostly we've been taken pretty much for granted, like the paper boy or the milkman.

Since Pearl Harbor, though, people generally have regarded Southern Pacific and the other railroads with new understanding and appreciation. Now, when the chips are down, they seem to realize how indispensable the railroads really are.

Because of Southern Pacific's strategic location in relation to the war against Japan, we have been called upon to carry an enormous westbound burden. In addition, we are handling vast quantities of raw materials and finished products of greatly expanded western industries, plus an abnormally large eastbound movement of foodstuffs.

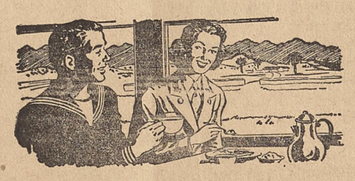
The six facts below may help explain the unprecedented burden we are carrying, and why our service to civilians is not as good as we'd like it to be:

1 In freight and passenger volume, Southern Pacific is the third largest railroad in America. Only the Pennsylvania and New York Central are carrying a bigger load than Southern Pacific.



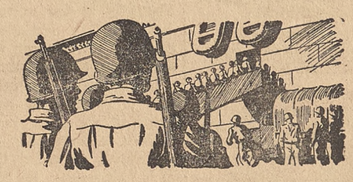
2 Southern Pacific's 15,000 miles of line (more than any other United States railroad) are predominately single track, requiring the most accurate and exacting kind of railroading.

3 Southern Pacific serves more military and naval establishments than any other railroad in the U. S. From New Orleans to Portland an endless chain of air bases and encampments adjoins our line.



4 We serve more military meals to personnel of the armed forces than any other two U. S. railroads combined. And, of course, service men and women have first call on our restricted ration points.

5 Southern Pacific crosses innumerable mountain ranges, and has to climb more major summits than any other U. S. railroad. It takes more locomotives to pull trains up steep mountain grades.



6 Southern Pacific has the main north and south line along the Pacific Coast, serving the principal ports of embarkation from San Diego to Portland. Naturally, troop trains must come first with us.

MR. WINKLE GOES TO WAR

By THEODORE PRATT

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Forty-four-year-old Wilbert Winkle, who operates a repair shop in the alley back of his home, is notified by his draft board that he is in 1-A. He breaks the bad news to his domineering wife, Amy, who becomes suddenly tender. Mr. Winkle is sent to Camp Squibb, where, after graduating from Motor Mechanics school, he leaves for home on a furlough. Amy hardly knows him, and his dog barks at him furiously. Mr. Winkle and his friend, Mr. Tinker, soon find themselves on the high seas in a huge convoy. They land on the island of Talizo and report at one of the repair shops. Some of their friends are also on the island. There is a bad mist, that might screen Japs.

CHAPTER XII

Mr. Winkle pulled his steel helmet more securely on his head and pressed on the accelerator of the car.

The jeep shot off the road and along the sand trail leading to the beach. The command car stood where it had been left, in a partially cleared space enclosed by low palms. Mr. Winkle stopped alongside it.

As they got out, he glanced at the tent, set at one side among the trees. Ordinarily, the off-duty members of the machine-gun crew would be lolling or sleeping there. It was empty.

Up on the low ridge, fifty feet away, a helmeted head appeared above the sand. It was the Alphabet. Recognizing them, he waved briefly and then disappeared.

The jeep shot off the road and along the sand trail.

"It ain't like him," Mr. Tinker observed, "not to be hospitable to his friends."

Mr. Winkle took their tools from the back seat of the jeep. His hands shook a little. He pulled his helmet still more securely over his head and said, "We'd better get to work."

"We can take a minute," Mr. Tinker said, "to see what's going on up there."

Reluctantly. Mr. Winkle followed him to the ridge.

They didn't receive a very warm welcome. "If you got to come here," Sergeant Czeideskrowski snapped, "get down in."

They scrambled below ground level, hunching themselves into the fox hole, crowding Freddie, Jack, and the other men who sat listening attentively or kneeled to stare out over the ocean.

Freddie, at the machine gun whose snout pointed across the beach, greeted them, "Maybe you're just in time for the performance."

The Alphabet picked up the field telephone. He identified his post, listened for a moment and then said, "Yes, sir . . . No, sir, it hasn't lifted yet."

He put the instrument down and told his visitors, "That was your boss. He wanted to know if you got here. Like you heard, I didn't give away you being with us, but you better get back where you belong and beat it as soon as you're through."

They went, Mr. Winkle with alacrity and Mr. Tinker with regret.

From out over the sea there came a sudden roar. Guns began to spit virtually at the same instant.

"Duck!" yelled Mr. Winkle. He dropped the wrench he was holding and dived under the command car.

Lying there, his heart beating so fast it seemed to equal the rapid firing of the guns, he expected Mr. Tinker to join him.

Instead, he heard the quick firing of a Garand. He could see Mr. Tinker's feet and part of his legs, braced to take up the shock from the gun.

The plane came over. It appeared to know exactly where to come.

The firing stopped.

Mr. Winkle opened his eyes.

Again he saw Mr. Tinker, who was now standing halfway to the ridge. He was reloading his rifle and looking malevolently at the sky.

The plane came back.

Once more it spit heavy death from its nose, and lighter, more gentle death from its wings. Mr. Tinker fired right back at it.

It wasn't until a moment after the plane had gone again, out over the ocean, that Mr. Tinker's arms dropped and the rifle slid from his hands.

His voice choked and gurgled when he called, "Pop . . . Hey Pop . . ."

Then he crumpled, like something stiff gone soft, folding up and sinking to the ground.

Mr. Winkle, watching this from beneath the command car, couldn't believe at first that it was actual. It had happened too quickly, too much without warning to be any different from field tactics in which picked men simulated those hit when the planes came over.

Then he realized that the plane hadn't been a friendly one.

He crawled out from beneath the car and got to his feet. His legs seemed to function automatically, without any volition on his part, as he made his way to Mr. Tinker.

The blood spreading over Mr. Tinker's chest made him sick and weak. He bent and touched him, whispering his name. But Mr. Tinker didn t answer.

Mr. Winkle realized something else. When the plane went over the second time the Alphabet's machine gun hadn't fired.

From the fox hole now there came no movement. All about there was silence.

He ran to the ridge. He arrived breathing hard, not from exertion, but from excitement. He gasped at what he saw.

One of the shells from the plane's cannon had exploded in the fox hole. The bodies of the men lay about, some of them half buried. Freddie was sprawled over the gun, as if protecting it. Sergeant Czeideskrowski was on his back, his open eyes staring straight up at the burning sun and not blinking. In a tangled pile, Mr. Winkle caught sight of the side of Jack's still face.

A single thought ran through him repetitiously. How will I ever tell the Pettigrews? He asked himself. How will I ever tell the Pettigrews?

The sound of surging water made him turn his head.

Out of the mist had come a flat-nosed Japanese assault boat.

Behind it, but somewhat off to either side, were two more.

Mr. Winkle sank to his knees, both to get out of sight and because his legs wouldn't hold him up any more.

After a moment, he knew that he must do something. He realized that the whole position on Talizo might be lost if the men in those assault boats ever landed and infiltrated through the jungle.

He found himself scrabbling about in the sand of the fox hole for the field phone. It wasn't in sight.

He saw the Signal Corps wire leading up out of the hole. He grabbed it, and started pulling on it.

A broken piece of the shattered phone came into his hands.

He dropped it from nerveless fingers.

Helplessly, Mr. Winkle watched the leading assault boat come on. Now it was less than a hundred yards from the beach.

He looked back at the jeep. Unless the bullet holes through its windshield meant more than they appeared to, the car would still run. He could get back in it to give the alarm at the next post.

But by that time, the Japs would have effected their landing.

Mr. Winkle wished that it was not he who had been placed in this position. He wanted, fervently, for it to be another man, a fighter, a killer, a younger, a different, a better man than he. It flashed through his mind that it had been a mistake to draft and make a soldier out of a mouse. He felt guilty at not having resigned from the Army. A different man here now, in his place, would have known what to do.

Then Mr. Winkle knew what to do.

It occurred to him that he hadn't thought of himself, of his own safety, when considering getting away in the jeep. He had thought only to give the warning of what was happening.

Also, he saw Mr. Tinker lying sprawled out there on the ground. He remembered how he had ducked under the command car while Mr. Tinker fired his rifle. The recollection made him feel craven, especially when now Mr. Tinker would never get his Jap.

He decided that he must get him for Mr. Tinker.

There were the Alphabet, Freddie, Jack, and the other men to think about, too. It infuriated him that Sergeant Czeideskrowski lay dead. It made him see red to think that after Freddie had been made into a decent person, he had been killed. His brain seared with a hot flame at the thought of Jack.

It seemed to be the most natural thing in the world to pull Freddie's body from the gun. Swiftly, he examined it. The gun was intact. It needed only a new belt of ammunition.

He clawed about in the sand and among the bodies for an ammunition box. He stepped on soft flesh and didn't mind it.

Digging furiously, he found what he wanted. He stripped the nearly spent belt from the gun, and inserted a fresh one.

As he worked he knew how good and wise it was that he had been trained to operate a machine gun. He wished that he was better at it. But a rising surge of confidence made him sure he would be good enough.

The first boat was nearly at the shore. Mr. Winkle sighted the gun for the spot he figured the men would be when they stepped out. That was what he had been taught.

He still had a moment. He employed it by coolly taking off his glasses and wiping them dry with his handkerchief. He wiped his face and neck, both of which streamed with sweat.

He glanced about.

This was where he would die.

He had often wondered in what circumstances and in what locality it would occur. Now he knew. It wasn't such a bad place. He saw it almost for the first time, the waving palm trees, the flowering hibiscus.

He liked it.

It was romantic.

Amy, he thought, would be glad to know it was such an attractive place.

It occurred to him that for the first time in his life he wasn't afraid to die. He even exulted in it. He heard his voice. He was laughing. He felt released from hard, painful bonds. He knew that, at last, Wilbert George Winkle, in the flesh and not in a newspaper headline, was proud to fight.

He turned back to the gun. It was nearly time.

The assault boat beached in shallow water. Men started jumping out and splashing through the water. He could see their faces, brown, slant-eyed, expressionless. Mr. Winkle let them all get out. Then, carefully sighting, he squeezed the trigger.

There was a snap and a jerk.

The gun jammed without firing.

Frantically, he worked at the gun. One finger caught in the mechanism. He tore it away. Blood spurted, but he paid no attention. He kept picking at the jammed cartridge. Finally he got it out, and a new one in the firing chamber, the gun prepared properly.

Five men had run ahead, off to one side. Mr. Winkle swung his gun around, concentrating on them first. This time the gun fired. He was astonished to see the men fall. He wasn't sure if one of them got away.

He swung the gun back, spitting vengeance at the larger group. As the bullets spat out from under his hands, a still new and greater world opened before him.

This was what he had lived for. Life had a meaning and a purpose of which he had never dreamed.

He sprayed the milling men down there.

He had a mad, blind desire to annihilate and destroy the enemy. It seemed like a torrent pent up in him for years and spilling out in one overwhelming rush.

He sprayed it on the milling men down there. That burst was for Jack. That one was for Freddie. This long one for Mr. Tinker. Now one for the Alphabet. Still more for the other men. Wilbert Winkle, who operates The Fixit Shop, first married selectee in the 36 to 45 draft-age group to be called, is killing these enemies of his country. He is anxious to defend the four freedoms. It's worth any sacrifice, if need be, his very life.

Wilbert Winkle wanted more enemies to kill when all these were gone, when no one stood on his feet in the writhing, shrieking mass on the wet sand.

He saw more at the approach of the other two boats. Quite calmly, without excitement of any kind, and not realizing he was following Army procedure painstakingly taught him, he inserted another fresh belt of ammunition.

Instinctively, as if something told him to, he looked behind him, over the edge of the fox hole.

A Jap officer was stealing his way toward him. He was the one who had got away from the group of five. The swarthy little man was between the cars and the body of Mr. Tinker.

Mr. Winkle grabbed the nearest rifle. He swung it into position to fire, resting it on the edge of the fox hole.

'CLASS DISTINCTIONS' IN OUR COUNTRY

The only class distinctions in America can be illustrated by two houses and two families with whose history I am fairly familiar.

Two young men had grown from youth to manhood together. They had the same kind of jobs in the same plant, where they received the same wages. In 1931 they were both engaged to be married, and, as homes to which to take their brides, decided to buy adjoining cottages in a new subdivision. The houses had just been completed, were as alike as two peas, complete in every particular with the exception of landscaping of the lots. There were no lawns, no flowers, no shrubbery.

The places were purchased on a small down payment with the remainder to be paid in monthly installments over a period of seven years.

Over the years children were born, three in one family, two in the other.

By the spring of 1932 the grounds around one home had been landscaped. The front yard was covered with grass, flowers and shrubbery. In the back yard was a family garden that provided needed vegetables for the summer and fall, with some to can for winter use. In a corner of that back yard was a chicken house with hens to provide the family with eggs.

Today that cottage is a clean, orderly, well-kept home for the man, his wife and three children. It is paid for, and out of his still small wages he has bought war bonds. The children are cleanly dressed and are welcomed visitors at the homes of their schoolmates.

The other house has not been fully paid for. It has never been painted since it was purchased. The steps to the front door are broken. The yard, front and back, is filled with weeds. There is no lawn, no flowers, no shrubbery. No vegetables or chickens. The two children are slovenly and unkempt. Their playmates are the riff-raff of the neighborhood.

In 1934 the head of that family deliberately got himself fired. The job did not pay enough, he did not like the boss, but by getting fired instead of quitting he could, for a time, draw unemployment insurance. The family was on relief and when the unemployment compensation stopped he secured a place on a WPA payroll.

He had, in three years, acquired a sufficient equity in the house to enable him to cover what remained by a mortgage on which the interest is now due, and the mortgage will soon be foreclosed.

The only class distinctions I know of in America is illustrated by those two families. The one would make a home of any place in which they might reside, no matter how humble. The other would make a pig sty of a palace. The one family represents character and ambition, a will to get ahead. The other wants something for nothing and demands that it be provided for by the government.

There are two sides of the tracks. Some persist in living on the wrong side, and they are numbered among the submerged one third. It was not unavoidable misfortune or lack of opportunity that put and keeps them there. It is a lack of ambition, an unwillingness to strive for better things. They constitute a class.

IF THE REPUBLICANS are to have a chance to win in November Governor Dewey must be shown to the voters of rural America as the country product. The people of rural communities do not trust what they consider "New York city slickers." A picture of and story about that country print shop from which Governor Dewey's father issued a country weekly newspaper will make more Dewey votes than a ton of political invective.

FROM AN ADVERTISEMENT I garnered an idea of why America "ticks"; what free enterprise means to us as individuals. That ad listed the 18 presidents of the Bell Telephone companies of America, all of whom had worked up from the ranks. It gave their first job and their first pay. That first pay ranged from $6 to $15 a week. Those men had improved the opportunities free enterprise offers to the individual.

IN 1918 THE THEN King George, of England, said to a small group, of which I was one, that he was but a symbol to the English people. "I am to the English what your flag is to you Americans," he said. On D-day I wondered if our flag was still a symbol to we Americans. For blocks in either direction on the street on which I live, there were but two American flags displayed, and on such an occasion, when American men were embarking on the greatest military event in history.

Chinese Confronted by Big Task in Learning Alphabet

Chinese is generally accepted as the most difficult language to master. When children begin learning the alphabet, they are confronted not with 26 but 1,100 characters. There are only 400 different sounds which have to be used in 550,000 different ways, which give the language a singsong effect, in which each intonation has a different meaning.

In 1929 a Russian professor named Dragunov decided to simplify the language. This new Chinese had to undergo many modifications, but the professor perfected a Chinese - Latin typewriter with two keyboards of 5,000 characters, on which an expert typist can write 1,000 words an hour.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Tests have shown that a single skid may take 100 miles off the life of a tire. The loss will be greater with tires made of synthetic rubber.

A B. F. Goodrich official believes that before natural rubber is again available in quantity the industry will so improve the quality of synthetic rubber that it will be equal to the former for many uses.

It's important to put your spare in service when making periodic tire switches. In that way the wear is distributed over five tires instead of four.

Woman's Club Dedicates New Meeting Place

Nearly 100 women attended the dedication of the new meeting place for the Ocean Beach Woman's club, at the corner of Muir and Abbott streets the afternoon of Sept. 14. A special program had been arranged for the event, with a tea hour at the close.

A highlight of the musical part of the program was the whistling solos by Mrs. Kathryne Hunter, San Diego radio artist. She was accompanied by Mrs. W. G. Ehmcke. Olive Krushat, 15-year-old soloist, accompanied by her teacher, Mrs. Eva Demarest, also pleased the audience, with several selections.

Main address was by Father Philip S. Harris, who emphasized the spiritual values signified by the building's dedication to the use of the community.

The program, in charge of Mrs. Paul Hendrickson, program chairman, opened with pledge of allegiance to the flag, led by Mrs. Daisy Munchiando, a past president of the club, and with invocation by Rev. J. F. Roberts.

The club president, Mrs. C. W. Early, presented the honored Federation guests of the meeting, including Mrs. Meta Zill, state chairman of industry and consumer problems; Mrs. Edward Dwyer, vice president of the southern district of woman's clubs; and Mrs. Ben Sturtevant of National City, the first vice-president of the county federation of woman's clubs.

An interesting feature was the history of the club written and presented by Mrs. Marian Krettler, a past president. Other speakers included Miss Agnes Ells, a charter and honorary member of the club, in whose home the club was organized; and Mrs. Anna C. Burch, a past president. Mrs. Burch said that as far back as her term of office "we had the dream of a new building."

Another feature was the presentation of a life membership in the club to Miss Jean Rittenhouse, the donor of the site on which the clubhouse stands. Miss Kate Spani, past president, made the presentation in a fitting talk.

Other past presidents introduced were Mrs. Margaret Reinfrank and Mrs. C. W. Varney.

Mrs. Ella Smith reported for the Red Cross department of the club and Mrs. R. J. Long for the literature department.

Mrs. Lyle Burkett, the newly appointed hospitality chairman, was in charge of the tea hour and was assisted by her co-chairman, Mrs. S. M. Kyde; and by Mrs. Julia McGarvey, Mrs. C. W. Varney, Mrs. Margaret Reinfrank and Mrs. Bessie Harrison.

BAPTIST CHURCH SCENE OF WEDDING SUNDAY, WITH RECEPTION AT HUME HOME

The Baptist church was the scene Sunday afternoon of a wedding that united in marriage Kathleen Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spaw of Portland, and Edward Caswell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Caswell of 2228 Kettner blvd. Rev. P. O. Jenson performed the ceremony at 4 o'clock, the bride being given in marriage by Frank Siddall. She wore a white silver taffeta wedding gown and had a bride's bouquet of nosegays. She was attended by Mrs. Eva M. Mizoney, wearing rose taffeta. Clarence Teeples was best man and Joe Hume and Dewitt Fields were the ushers. Soloist was J. W. Fletcher, with Mrs. Fields as the accompanist. The church was decorated with baskets of pink and white dahlias and fern.

Honoring the couple a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Hume jr., 2251 Bolinas st., with the following as guests:

Messrs. and Mesdames J. Cathcart, E. W. Gaul, A. Caswell, J. E. Hume, G. Dell, Robert Caswell, Donald Tank, J. E. Kyle, W. H. Harrington, H. G. Clark and R. B. Scott; and Mrs. P. O. Jenson, Evans Jones, Mrs. Clarence Teeples, Mrs. M. McPherson and Mrs. Marion Siddall; the Misses Joan Caswell, Ada Wright, Irene McCarthy, Frances Kimball, Smela Maranich, Vida Burrows and Faith Holley; and Richard and Charles Caswell.

The reception was held in the Hume garden, with a flower bedecked archway under which the bride and groom cut the wedding cake. The mother of the bride sent a white fruit cake for the event.

Following a wedding trip to Los Angeles and Long Beach the couple will reside at 3711 Monroe st., San Diego.
